was loved by God and therefore also loved by everyone. It is the luck of her relatives that she forged their connection. She was number one in using everything in a worthwhile way and enabling others to do the same. Achcha. Avyakt BapDada 19/02/12

There are the Christians anyway, but even in Muslim countries, so many children who were hidden have emerged and are moving forward. They are doing that in a different way. ## A Life Like a Diamond

Posted on February 20, 2012

Dear Friends and Family of It's Time,

This week I would like to dedicate 'It's Time' to a very special person who was my spiritual sister and colleague in Kuwait – Wajeeha Al Habib, who passed on yesterday morning (19th Feb 2012) after a long illness. She had been a Meditator for around 12 years and in a short time came to epitomize many of the Raja Yoga teachings and was an example to us all. She sincerely cared for those around her, had a cool, gentle temperament and a big overflowing heart. She adjusted her life in such a way, that more and more of it was for the service of humanity. She will be dearly missed.

As I am dealing with other matters, I asked another spiritual sister of mine, Carol, to pen some thoughts we discussed. Below is what she has come up with and I concur with her on all the points. Thank you Carol!

DIRECTOR'S MESSAGE

Dear Prospective Parent,

Welcome to Kuwait American School. I appreciate your interest in our values-based, high achieving school. I think you and your child(ren) will enjoy the strong family feeling at KAS.

At Kuwait American School, we hold a high vision for our students. We pledge to educate KAS students in accordance with the highest US and international academic standards. In addition to high academic standards, we also help students apply what they have learned with goodness and reason to uphold their own inherent values, family honor and to serve others. The latter is the result of my dream to bring and sustain ethical learning to the students living in Kuwait. Our school culture is based on Living Values Education so that not only are students treated with respect, care and dignity, but they learn about values affectively and cognitively in order to help create the change in the world we all wish to see.

I warmly invite you to be part of our high achieving Kuwait American School.

Sincerely,

Mrs. Wajeeha Al Habib
